WHAT IS THIS DOCUMENT?

This wireframe depicts the basic template for subpages of the revised BMC website.

1

The vertical and horizontal nav bars would essentially pivot between the corporate identity links and the practice area links. On practice area pages, the top bar would contain corporate identity links, while practice area links would appear in the vertical bar. On corporate identity pages, it would be reversed. Each nav group always be presented in a designated color, so the reversal of colors between the horizontal bar and the vertical bar would be a visual cue that the domain of navigation has changed.

2

The vertical navigation bar will list all sibling links within a given nav group, as well as sublinks relating to the current page. As users move from one sibling to another (e.g., from Class Action to M&A), related sublinks will expand beneath the chosen sibling, functioning like a simplified tree view.

3

An unbounded right column may be used to add focal points such as sidebars, blurbs, and highlights to grab the visitor's interest.
